

K-State 105

A STATEWIDE ECOSYSTEM

April K-State 105 newsletter

Welcome to the K-State 105 newsletter!

Thank you for your interest in K-State 105. Our initiative aims to build a statewide ecosystem that advances economic prosperity in all 105 counties across Kansas. This inaugural newsletter offers a quick look at some of our latest news, but you can always learn more at k-state.edu/105.

K-State, The University of Kansas Health System announce partnership to support rural health care and communities

Through the K-State 105 initiative, Kansas State University and The University of Kansas Health System announced in April that the two organizations are working together to explore ways to support health care in rural Kansas communities.

The partnership is a first-of-its-kind collaboration that brings together the land-grant mission and statewide presence of K-State through K-State Research and Extension with the expertise and experience of the state's only academic health system.

The program will start with pilot projects in areas still being determined through collaboration with communities and with K-State Research and Extension offices.

K-State 105 launches All Things Kansas

Want to better understand all 105 counties of the Sunflower State? Try All Things Kansas.

K-State 105 recently launched All Things Kansas, which is a free interactive tool with data-driven mapping, reports and insights for all 105 counties in Kansas. The website includes more than 30,000 data layers and uses more than 120 national and state data sources to help analyze and visualize data across Kansas communities.

All Things Kansas is in discovery phase. Take a look around, explore the tool's features and help make the website useful to people, businesses and organizations.
